

PICTURE OF GIRL OF SUSPECT

tion was indicated in the case by the discovery in the prisoner's pocket of the photograph of a girl, eighteen, said to be the daughter of a prominent Bridgewater resident. In addition to the picture the police also found in Brown's pocket a small notebook and pencil, which they believe may yet have some connection with the case. He has refused to divulge anything about the contents of the book.

The police are also still silent as to whether or not they believe the girl has any connection with the affair. The Bridgewater library, which would involve a woman is quoted by the dead man's own aged father.

This theory is also receiving little consideration from District Attorney Barker, who has been working on the case in conjunction with the police since McFadden's body, the head of which was cut off, was found lying in the shallow water of the river.

Henry McFadden, the murdered man's gray-haired father, holds to the robbery theory. He claims that his slain son had $18 in cash on the day preceding the murder and that he was then on his way to collect more. He claims that this theory is borne out by the fact that his son's money and coat were missing when the body was found in the river.

Another autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Faneuil has dispelled all doubt that McFadden was slain by a shotgun. Several pieces of shot have been found in the man's head and a powder-burned cap, worn by McFadden, has been found near the scene of the crime.

SAW RED CAR.

One of the most important witnesses at today's hearing will be Edward J. Faneuil, of Brockton, who says he was in a boat near the scene of the murder took place when McFadden was slain. He says he saw a red car and saw the car cross the bridge and around a curve.

He says he then rushed to the house where he found an empty shot gun shell. With others who came hurrying he was then assisted in following the trail of blood which led to McFadden's body.

Just before the body was discovered, Faneuil further claims that he saw a man enter McFadden's house, carrying a shotgun. As the man, Faneuil says, he paid little attention to the fact.

His recollection of this incident, however, is today regarded as of much importance by the police. It is probable that he will be asked to carefully scrutinize Brown when the latter appears in court today.

MEXICANS ARE DELIBERATELY KILLING U.S. TROOPS

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The British government will follow the lead of the United States and recognize the Carranza de facto government in Mexico.

Mr. Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, communicated this information to W. Webb, a member of Parliament.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The forces of General Calles, the Carranza commander at Aguas Prietas, deliberately fired at American officers at Douglas, Ariz. General Faneuil reported to the War Department today. General Faneuil immediately demanded an explanation and regrets and assurances that he would not fire again unless he was sure that the Carranza forces were not out to kill our American soldiers.

GENERAL FANEUIL REPORT.

General Faneuil's report follows:

Yesterday General Villa sent a request to me for an interview, and though I had no desire to see whether my actions would be justified, I did not want to meet him as he might have something to say to me.

We met on the boundary line, a mile east of Aguas Prietas, and General Villa's main force was there. He was accompanied by several pieces of shot and continued until noon today. General Villa's main force was there. He was accompanied by several pieces of shot and continued until noon today.

THREE AMERICANS WOUNDED.

His hundred cavalry then made a sortie, but were driven back after a sharp engagement. The shooting of Calles' artillery was fairly accurate. The shooting of Calles' artillery was fairly accurate.

His resolution of this incident, however, is today regarded as of much importance by the police. It is probable that he will be asked to carefully scrutinize Brown when the latter appears in court today.

RECALL NOTE INCREASED BY NEW FIGURES

Official figures compiled today at City Hall show an increase of the number of votes cast in the city for the recall of Mayor Curley and a decrease over the first returns of the "No" vote cast Tuesday on the same question.

A total of 14,390 votes is required by the city charter to recall the Mayor, and the official figures given out today by the Election Commissioners show the recall vote cast as 47,196, against the first published returns of 47,193 on the recall question.

According to the commission's figures, the "No" vote on the recall has dropped from 15,649, the first returns, to 15,744, making a majority of 11,451 for the recall vote, according to the official figures.

DR. CABOT URGES SALARIES FOR DOCTORS

"Competition between medical men for money is intolerable," declares Dr. Hugh Cabot of St. Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Cabot wants doctors to get into groups and receive salaries and thinks the profession is about to degenerate into a trade under the present arrangement.

This competition between practitioners exists today, and it is at the root of most of the tendencies against such practitioners have to strive.

BRITAIN DEFIES U. S. ON SHIP SEIZURE

By International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Britain's parliament today passed a bill to permit the seizure of German ships on the high seas, in defiance of the American embargo. The bill, which is expected to pass, is a direct challenge to the United States policy.

This summary action was taken in the face of the fact that in this government's Department of State, should explain the seizure of ships as a matter of course.

The department's representatives, however, in this action of Great Britain the fulfillment of the threat made by the British Foreign Office June 22, when Lord Curzon, answering for Sir Edward Grey, declared that the British government regarded that "it cannot continue to deal through the diplomatic channels with individual cases but they will again point out that special provision is made for the consideration of such cases in the future."

STIR IN CAPITAL OVER RETURN OF WHITLOCK

By International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Despite the protest of the German minister to Belgium, a return to the United States "on sick leave," the statement that Mr. Whitlock will soon leave his post has caused much comment.

Coming, as it does, on the heels of the bitter criticism in Germany of the return of Mr. Whitlock to the position of minister to Belgium, the statement has caused much comment.

It was interpreted at once to indicate that Germany had asked for the return of Mr. Whitlock, and that the German government had complied with the request. So far as can be ascertained, however, this opinion is supported only by circumstantial evidence.

Secretary Lansing issued the following statement: "There is nothing political in the fact that Mr. Whitlock is coming here on leave of absence. There is no connection between this and the case of Miss Edith Cavell. The department has known for two months that Mr. Whitlock was in ill health and that his physician in Germany advised that he take a rest. He was therefore given the leave of absence and solely for the purpose stated in the announcement by the department."

It is no secret, however, that this government was alarmed by the action of Great Britain in making public the report of Mr. Whitlock, some officials claiming that the department had asked the opportunity to send the United States in the event of a criticism of the German policy and creating a breach between the two governments.

MINORITY RULE

By HOWARD NOBLE

THE FALLACIES OF NATION-WIDE prohibition were clearly shown in the Congressional debate which preceded the vote on the Hobson resolution in the House, Dec. 22, 1914. The measure was discussed from every possible angle, particular stress being laid, by its opponents, upon the impracticability of the proposed Amendment as an aid to temperance.

According to newspaper accounts of the Atlantic City convention of the Anti-Saloon League, and of the conference of the leaders later, in Washington, it was decided that this same Resolution should be again introduced, at the forthcoming session of Congress. Thus the issue is still alive in its original form.

When Minority Rules

Many of the ablest men in the House, including Mr. Underwood of Alabama and Mr. Mann of Illinois, spoke and voted against the Resolution. Arguments made by these and other members are worth repeating, because they reflect the mature judgment of men of wide experience in public affairs.

Mr. Cantrell of Kentucky—"The cry goes up that we should be willing to let a majority of the people rule, yet, under this Resolution, it would be possible for 45 per cent to rule 55 per cent of our population. There are 12 States with a population of 5,000,000 that could be controlled by 36 States with a population of 40,000,000. As a temperance measure it will not prove of any value. It will not help prohibition, because it means free and unrestricted manufacture of intoxicating liquors. As an economic proposition, it would bankrupt the nation."

Bad Effect on Youth

Mr. Mann of Illinois—"I am opposed to any proposition which will bring before the country an issue which will make everything else at every election swing around the enforcement of a prohibitory amendment which cannot be enforced. The gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Hobson) wants to submit a proposition which will cause more misery, more 'blind pigging,' more 'beef-legging,' the consumption of more liquor improperly, more temptation to the youth of the land than is now the case."

Federal Domination

"This is not a question of temperance; it is not a moral question; it is merely a question as to whether you are going to substitute for the authority of your State to enforce its laws against your own people the authority of the Federal government, that may or may not be in sympathy with the sentiment, the character and the history of your people. In my judgment there is but one way to work this question out, and that is by education, sustained by local laws."

"Experience has proved that, as a rule, the smaller the unit of local option the more effectively has the sale of liquor been prevented and the greatest progress to complete sobriety obtained. Every law intended to regulate the sale of liquor is a farce when it does not embody the sentiment of the community in which it is to be enforced. It is a breeder of fraud and corruption and of contempt for constituted authority."

"Beer is a refreshing, exhilarating nutritive. A light beer, well flavored with the hop, is calculated to promote digestion."

The Blockade of American Ports Is Now Complete

THE blockade of the ports of the United States seems to be completely effective.

For more than a year American ships bound to foreign neutral ports have been regularly seized and their cargoes confiscated. But our ships still had the proud privilege of trading unmolested between our own home ports. Now the blockade has stopped that!

Henceforth, an American ship, bound from Boston or New York to another American port or to New York or Boston from another American port, will be permitted to voyage unmolested only when it suits the British blocking squadron not to seize her.

An amended British order-in-council, issued on October 23, abrogates Article 57 of the Declaration of London, sets aside the long-maintained policy and doctrine of the United States, and directs commanders of British war vessels to seize any American ship, though flying the American flag and proceeding under American registry to voyage from one American port to another American port, if the American ship is believed by the British government to be partly or wholly and openly or secretly owned by citizens of Germany or Austria.

Not since 1812 has such an intolerable and absolutely indefensible claim to jurisdiction over the sea-going commerce of neutrals been made by any government.

That claim WAS made in 1812.

A precisely similar and as intolerable and indefensible claim to seize, search and take captive American ships was made by England at that eventful period.

And our answer was war.

Our people spoke their dissent through the mouths of the cannon that brought victory and glory to the American navy and peace with honor and safety to American commerce.

But those were brave days. There were giants in them, too. And the government was as manly as the common people. The President then could use stately speech and fine, fitting words. But he did not use either stately speech or fine words to clothe ignoble sentiments. He did not range through his scholarly vocabulary to make high-sounding excuses for trucking to imperious orders and for submitting to insulting and injurious assault upon American sovereignty and upon the freedom of the seas.

There was a difference between President James Madison and Professor Woodrow Wilson.

That is why this nation first fought for, and afterward victoriously maintained, the rights of American seamen through a hundred years of ocean freedom which ended in this year 1913.

The bare statement of the facts of the Hocking's seizure is enough to make a true American hang his head in shame.

This vessel is an American vessel, owned by Americans. She is under American registry. She was flying the American flag. She carried no contraband, because there can be no such thing as contraband traffic between two American ports. And her manifest shows her to have been in ballast, without cargo of any kind. Not only that, but the vessel was on her way from New York to Norfolk, there to load coal for Argentina.

A more complete showing of American neutral identity and purpose it would be impossible to make for any ship.

And yet the British blockading squadron seized this American neutral ship and carried her by force into the British fortified port of Halifax.

The president of the company which owns the Hocking asks bitterly what an American shipowner can do to protect his ships from seizure. He asks bitterly what protection the administration proposes to give American ships. And other American shipowners ask as bitterly what protection American registry and the American flag afford to American neutral commerce.

The answer is in a single word, and short and shameful it is.

NONE.

That is the answer, based upon the humiliating and cowardly and disgraceful submission which our shipowners and seamen have been compelled for more than a year to make to British orders and to British naval forces, arrogantly blockading the sea lanes which lead to our American ports.

We do not know what has become of the spirit and the courage of 1812. But we do know that they do not dwell in Washington; that they do not vitalize the Department of State; that they are not visible in the White House.

Even the professionally good Mr. Bryan's dove of peace, though not a sucking, at times outcrawled the administration lion, which now skulks behind a fence of pretty phrases while our flag is insulted, our ships seized, our commerce destroyed and our rights as an independent people spit upon with contempt.

Citizens, your fathers wore no such white feathers. Nobody spit upon their rights twice. They were MEN. And so ought we to be.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

NO GOOD FIGHT IS EVER LOST

Woman suffrage has not been defeated in this State—only postponed.

Beginning now, TODAY, the women will continue their work, and the Boston AMERICAN will work with them for the victory that they are sure to win.

Twelve intelligent States have given women the suffrage; in twelve States the husband and wife have two votes instead of one.

This State is not going to remain behind in the progress of civilization.

Next to the vote, the best thing for women is intelligent discussion and devoted hard work.

The postponement of woman suffrage will mean intense interest in public affairs on the part of women, earnest appeals to men which must affect even the dustiest of them.

And ultimately, AND SOON, woman suffrage will come in this State as it has come already in the great State of Illinois and in eleven other States of the United States.

The women of the State have made an admirable, noble fight. They have set a good example to men, showing unselfish devotion to a cause such as men in politics have never shown.

More clearly than ever men ought to see that women are the better half of humanity.

Much of the work done for suffrage has been done by readers of the Herald newspapers. We congratulate them and urge them to continue the work.

Suffrage for women will compel the politicians to interest themselves in the welfare of women and children—and that will be the beginning of real government FOR THE PEOPLE.

Remember That Matrimony Is Thy Job

Many Marriages Are Failures Because Weddings Are Regarded as a Matter of Luck

By Dorothy Dix

THIS is the Tenth Commandment of Matrimony:

THOU SHALT REMEMBER THAT MATRIMONY IS THY JOB, AND IF THOU FAILEST THEREIN, THE SHAME THEREOF IS ON THINE OWN HEAD.

The reason that so many marriages are failures is because we hold to the simple theory that whether a wedding turns out well or ill is solely a matter of luck. Also, we pin our faith to the cheerful belief that undertaking the responsibility for another person's happiness and well-being, setting up a new household, and running a family is so simple a job that any callow girl and boy can pull it off successfully.

If every bride and groom would only face this rock-bottom fact at the beginning of their married life, and instead of saying, "I hope we are going to be happy," say "I know we are going to be happy, because we are both determined to make our marriage a success," they would wipe Reno off the map and do away with divorce.

Use Business Tactics

For it is a pitiful truth that if the average man and woman gave as much thought and intelligence toward making marriage a success as they do toward making any business they are engaged in a success, no marriage would be a failure, and if any man or woman took a hundredth part of the trouble to try to please wife or husband that he or she does to please an employer, there would be no more talk of afflictions or alienation of the affections.

And the same tactics that make a business a success would make a home a success. When a man goes into business he doesn't expect his store or office to flourish and prosper just of itself. He doesn't expect his partner to do all the work and let him share in more than half of the perquisites. He doesn't expect his partner to be perfect.

He knows that to make a business go both partners must work together in harmony; that they must overlook each other's faults and make allowances for mistakes; that they must make a fair divide of the profits. He knows that it takes planning and thought and study to make a business successful, and that a man must use tact and diplomacy and self-control in dealing with his associates.

Make Good Wives

Women are just as guilty in this regard as men. If, when a woman gets married, she recognized that she had deliberately chosen matrimony as her career, and that it was just as much a triumph to succeed in it as it is to be a Grand Opera star, and just as much a shame to fail in it as it is to be hissed off the stage, why, we should have none but happy homes.

When a woman undertakes to make a living outside of the home she soon finds out that she has to be efficient and painstaking, and punctual; that she has to control her temper, and get rid of her nerves, and that she has to look her prodigious little feeling up in a safety deposit box and leave them behind her when she goes out to battle with the world. She also ascertains that she must forget how to weep, and not answer back when a tired and irritable man speaks to her crossly, and says harsh things about her work.

Suppose a woman applied the same methods in dealing with her husband that she uses in dealing with her employer. Suppose she was a crackerjack cook instead of a crackerjack bookkeeper. Suppose she was as accurate about her household expenditures as she was in her cash account at the store. Suppose she showed up at the breakfast table as neat and trim and trig as she was when she came into her employer's office to take his dictation. Suppose she used as much blarney in jollying along her husband as she did in soft-soothing the boss.

What man would want a divorce from such a wife? No one. And, as a matter of fact, the men who do marry girls who have got their training in business offices, and have learned the iron self-control that insulated, seldom do figure among the matrimonial failures.

Mismatching Remedy

Finally, there is this word to be said: When a man makes a foolish trade, instead of wheeling over his ill luck, and calling upon Heaven to witness how he has been stung, if he has any grit in him, he shuts his teeth and goes to work to make the best of a bad bargain. And often and often he wreaths victory out of defeat.

This plan would be equally effective in matrimony, and if the husband and wife who find that they are mismatched would only bend all of their energies and their ingenuity to making the best of the situation, they would find that patience can work miracles and turn even a disappointing marriage into a comfortable jog-trot of companionship.

After all is said and done, this is the one great secret of how to be happy though married: To realize that the making of a home is the finest work that any man or woman ever undertakes, and to go at it with all the brains and enthusiasm that you have in you. Do that and you cannot fail. Therefore, if you forget all the other advice, forget not the tenth commandment of matrimony, which is: THOU SHALT REMEMBER THAT MATRIMONY IS THY JOB, AND IF THOU FAILEST THEREIN, THE SHAME THEREOF IS ON THINE OWN HEAD.

Her slim white fingers folded and her eyes Soaring beyond to visions in the skies. This is a prayer rug wrought of silken thread. And the who used it has been long years dead.

In-Shoots

When a man is down and out he would just as soon have a job as a position.

It is possible for a man to have a symmetrical face and a cobbler's heart.

The chances are that the man in a great hurry may be trying to get away from something.

The statistician is the most successful of liars. As no one ever stops to figure up his statements.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Call of Ambition

And they whisper to each other: 'Look! That's her!' Them sour-faced old managers can't frighten me away. They talk about that talent stuff to get my goat, but say! They can throw me off the Customs Tower twenty times a day 'If they'll let me be a movie queen!'

'LET them villains kick and cuff me, I should care how much they rough me! For send the wildest perils that surround me I will know I'll be firmly re-united to the one to who I'm plighted And be wearing fur and diamonds at the finish of the show. So let 'em shove to ribbons for Eulalia Fitzgibbon.

This ain't no proper setting for a future movie queen. And I guess a certain party by the name of Jake McCarty Will be jealous of the hero I'm engaged to on the screen.'

MISS EULALIA FITZGIBBONS has a soul above the ribbons That she sells to empty women in a big department store. She's in search of a position with more scope for her ambition And the ribbon-counter soon will know Eulalia no more. She's condescended to Miss Grady, who's the druggist's sundry lady. That she longs for something better, something big and wild and free!

For a store has no attraction for a girl that's born for action— "Here is what is going to happen," says Eulalia, says she:

"I'm going to be a movie picture actress And draw about a thousand dollars per. See-Loose All, but it will thrill 'em, When I walk out on the film."
